ALUMNI ASSOCIATION.

Special Meeting Held Last Night to Discuss the Proposed Alliance with Harvard.

About eight hundred Alumni and friends of Technology gathered in Huntington Hall last night to listen to a discussion of the advantages and disadvantages of the proposed alliance with Harvard University. The speakers were: President Pritchett, John R. Freeman, Col. T. L. Livermore, E. S. Draper, Dean Burton and James P. Monroe.

President Pritchett was introduced as the first speaker by Col. Locke. The President spoke of the work of the Committee in preparing a tentative plan for alliance, stating that it was the intention of the Committee to frame a plan which would give practically a free field for technical education. In presenting the scheme it was found that there were three objections to be met: First, the present standard would be lowered by combination. The fact is, that the standard would be eventually lowered by competition rather than by combination. "Nothing could make our faculty lower its high standard except a ruinous competition." He went on to say to those who believed that the alliance would prove dangerous to the Technology spirit, that spirit was largely a matter of point of view, and that it would be well to look upon the alliance from all sides. For those who were suspicious of the idea, clear thinking was the only solution.

Mr. J. R. Freeman, the second speaker, said that his opposition to the plan several years ago had changed to an approval. The plan was not a merger but an alliance. It would give a greater opportunity for scientific research. The alliance would provide a means for avoiding the deficit which has been increasing each year.

The affair was next viewed financially by Colonel Thomas L. Livermore. In reply to the arguments brought by the previous speaker concerning the increasing yearly deficit, he cited the fact that the Institute, which at its inception was practically without money, has at the present time several million dollars' worth of property, besides being the recipient of gifts aggregating in total nearly as much as those of the Lawrence Scientific School, including the McKay bequest. The present cost to the Institute of educating each student is three hundred and ten dollars per year. The reason for the present large deficit is that so many men entered two years ago.

Mr. E. S. Draper argued that the independence of the Institute will be maintained. The government will be the same, with the exception of three members from the Harvard Corporation. Degrees will be conferred as they are now—by the Institute Faculty. The new site and new buildings will belong to the Institute.

Dean Burton said that there would result a closer union than the one outlined in the agreement, as it is possible for more than three Harvard men to be on the Executive Committee. Technology will become a graduate professional school of Harvard. The people of the community will then lose their present choice of a straight technical course or three years academic and two years of scientific study. The first is adapted to one man and the second to another.

Mr. J. P. Munroe, '82, argued that the expense of taking in the students of the Lawrence Scientific School would be greater than the income from the McKay fund. The Institute is poor like all other colleges, but it is not poverty-stricken. It has been getting bequests of $250,000 annually for the past ten years. He read a letter in which a Harvard man stated that all Harvard Alumni are opposed to the alliance.

CONSOLATION GAMES.

Yesterday afternoon about twenty-five men competed in the consolation games given at the Technology Field. The meet was held principally to give the raw material some chance to show its worth and to encourage new men to try for the team.

The track was in fine condition and the weather excellent. The events were run off in good order and much interest was manifested in the results.

The Freshmen were conspicuous in the events, winning four of the first places. H. J. Ruggles, '08, was first in the quarter mile, M. D. Hersey, '08, in the mile, C. A. Edmunds, '08, in the broad jump, and F. J. Friedman, '08, in the discus throw. The other first places were won by M. J. Gibbons, '06, in the 100 and 220-yard dashes; C. R. Prichard, '05, in the one-half-mile run, and Adams, '06, in the two-mile run. The prizes were for first place in each event, and consisted of ash trays, match boxes and cigarette holders.

OHIO CLUB.

The Ohio Club will hold its final dinner for this year at Tech Union on Tuesday, May 9, at 6 o'clock. Every member who has not yet done so should notify the secretary of his intention of attending the affair.

1905 CLASS MEETING.

An Assessment of Five Dollars Per Capita for Class Day is Voted.

A meeting of the Senior Class was held in Huntington Hall, Wednesday noon, to discuss Class Day matters. An assessment of five dollars per man was voted, to pay for Class Day expenses. Marcy announced that the Committee had voted to give every man four tickets. These tickets will be ready about two weeks before Class Day, and they will be delivered on payment of the five dollar assessment. As usual, there will be no caps and gowns this year. Marcy also outlined the probable program of the Commencement week.

TECH SHOW DINNER.

The Annual Dinner given by the Management of the Tech Show to the participants, will be at the Tech Union, tomorrow (Saturday) evening, at 6.30. WILLIAM A. NICHOLS, PRINTER, 208 SUMMER ST., REAR

We have heard several criticisms of the Tech Alumnus, all seeming to indicate that he was narrow in his views. Further, that for a position commanding a salary of from two to five thousand dollars a year he was well fitted. But positions of greater importance, those bringing into play a knowledge of men based upon a training in good fellowship with men, rather than good scholarship, he was seldom called upon to fill. This criticism of narrowness applies to the undergraduate life. Our tendency is to render to scholarship some of that effort which should go into character and the broadening of humanities, for this after all is what an education means. It is not the technical or the scientific problems that present the greatest difficulties today, but the problem of management of men. The great need of our undergraduate life is a more wholesome contact with the men around us, for good fellowship is as necessary a training for the successful engineer as is good scholarship.

INSTITUTE OF ELECTRICAL ENGINEERS.

A joint meeting of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers and the New England Telephone Society was held in 23 Walker, Wednesday evening. The speaker of the evening, Mr. K. W. Waterson, M. I. T. '98, VI. of the American Telephone and Telegraph Co., spoke on the "Development of Central Energy Eelephone Stations." In his talk he traced the history of Telephone Stations from beginning down to the present. The lecture was illustrated with charts, showing wiring connections.

Malcolm McLeod has resigned from Technique 1907. R. W. Parlin has been elected business manager.

The tickets for the Harvard-Yale debate are fifty cents each. They may be had from R. E. Bell, 1905.

TECHNOLOGY CLUB.

At the Technology Club on Wednesday evening, Lieutenant-Governor Guild talked on "The Reconstruction of Cuba." The talk was in a measure confidential, in that it was to some extent, a forecast rather than a narrative of past developments. The meeting was one of the most interesting of the year.

ARCHITECTURAL SOCIETY.

The Architectural Society held a well attended and enthusiastic Smoker, at Tech Union, last Wednesday evening. Professor Bartlett was the guest of honor, and spoke of the value of ever keeping one's chosen ideal in mind; the more prominently it was brought forward, the greater a man's possibilities of success. The Executive Committee reported that the Annual Dinner of the Society will be held Saturday evening, May 6, at the Old Elm.

A meeting of the Exeter Club was held Thursday at 1 P.M. The Club decided to have a dinner in the near future, and a committe consisting of Godfrey, Nabsted and Hastings, was appointed to look after the necessary arrangements.

MEMORIAL TO THOMAS M. DROWN.

Plans are being made to erect a memorial to the late president, Thomas M. Drown, of Lehigh University. It will take the form of a club house for the faculty and students, and will be erected at a cost of $80,000. President Drown was formerly connected with Technology. In 1885 he was made Professor of Analytical Chemistry, and shortly afterwards head of the Chemistry Department. In 1895 he resigned, to accept the Presidency of Lehigh. A memorial has been prepared by the Faculty of Technology, and will shortly be published.
